Samson Shirley!Von Hubert GreinThanx to Shirley, the truth about the devastating side effects of the chemodrug Taxotere (Docetaxel) will be known to the world. Although many women have suffered the permanent hairloss Shirley describes in her book - because of doctors who do not speak the truth or are not interested in seeking the truth - there have been and there will be many women who are spared this horrendous future thanx to Shirley. She has put up a tremendous struggle against the big pharma boys and doctors who chose to lie or keep important information silent. And although the legal system and regulations have let her down, thanx to her and this book, women can learn the truth and make an informed choice whether to go with Taxotere or an alternative. And that is just what it is all about, being able to make our own choices based on the truth. As a fellow-sufferer, I laughed and I cried while reading this book. Hairless but strong as Samson, that is Shirley Ledlie. Oncologists (including students!) and (breast) cancer counsellors all over the world, do yourself a favor and read this book. The next time you have to advise a patient regarding his or her treatment, you will hopefully appreciate how important full regrowth of hair is for the quality of our lives. And it is not all hairloss pain in this book, Shirley's account of her new life in la douce France will surely make you laugh and your next holiday will probably be in this beautiful countryor Turkey for that matter....!Yvonne KurzbeschreibungA seven year journey that starts AFTER the cancer treatment ends. There are no needles, biopsies or anti-sickness drugs. This memoir is about the lies, betrayal and the dirty little secret she had unwillingly become part of. Not just her but hundreds of women all over the world - and it still goes on today. Whistle blowers, irrational behaviour and some madness- it is all here. Humorous and inspiring, in parts, and desperate in others.

ber den Autor und weitere MitwirkendeI was born in Nottingham England in 1958. Firstly, I am a wife and mother. I am blessed to have an amazing husband and two beautiful children. We came to France, Brittany, in 2000 and moved south to Toulouse ten years later. It was while living in Brittany that I began writing my weekly column in the Bella magazine UK. I have a few hobbies including vegetable gardening, cooking, painting plant pots and drinking the odd cocktail.
